ANTHONY'S ADVENTURES

It sure is good to have mommy home. And my new little baby sister isn't so bad after all. She can't go outside and play with me yet—but that's alright, I'll give her a couple of weeks to catch on.

You know of course that our place is located on Crenshaw right across from the big Jim Dandy Market. Well, what I wanted to tell you is that daddy has discovered that lots of times it's just as cheap to buy his supplies at Jim Dandy as it is to go to the wholesale grocery and meat companies.

That's why daddy buys all his meat from Don, who manages the meat department. And he gets Romaine and other salad stuff from Al in the produce department. Al is the fellow with a nice, shiny head like my daddy's. And he gets lots of supplies, soap and floor wax and stuff like that in the grocery department. Shorty Modeland is the manager of the whole place—and that's some managing 'cause it's really a big place.

I want to thank all the nice fellows and girls who work at Jim Dandy for coming over and eating at our place so often. Daddy says it's really a pleasure to wait on them.

One of the fellows who was over to eat the other day said that Jim Dandy is going to be open 'til midnight every night. That makes it real nice for the people who live around here. Daddy says maybe we'll do the same thing. Gee, no room left for that recipe mommy gave me. Well, I promise to put it in next week's column. Bye-bye.
